
The criminal case in the connection with the killing of six persons in the Samara region transferred for investigation to main investigative directorate of the Russia's I.C.

The Russia's Investigative Committee Bodies for the Samara region have initiated a criminal case on signs of offences in violation of Article 105, part 2 and Article 30, part 3 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation (killing of two and more persons, attempted murder) in the connection with detection of corpses of six persons and a minor's severe wound.

This morning corpses of three males and three women with signs of the violent death were found in the village of a house of Ivashevka village of the Syzran district of the Samara region. Among the dead people there is a deputy chief of the staff of the Chief Directorate of Internal Affairs for the Samara region and his relatives. In grave condition a girl born in 2009 was delivered from the place of the incident to the hospital with traumas.

At the direction of Chairman of Russia's I.C. Alexander Bastrykin the criminal case has been transferred for investigation to the Main Investigations Directorate of Russia's I.C.. A group of investigators of the central staff of Russia's I.C. has been already directed to the place of the incident. The experienced investigators-criminalists of the central staff of Russia's I.C. also take part in investigation of the criminal case.

Head of Media Relations V. Markin

24 April 2016

Page address: <https://en.sledcom.ru/news/item/1032390>