
Caucasus. On tops of investigation...

The Main Investigations Directorate over North Caucasian Federal District is one of the leading units of the Investigative Committee of Russia. Working here requires maximum focusing and self-possession. The key priority of the investigators is to stabilise and control the crime situation in the region.

The investigators of the Main Investigations Directorate over North Caucasian Federal District work on major crimes involving public security, inter-nationality, and ethnic conflicts; get into the smallest details of high-profile accidents involving terrorism and extremism.

This film is about people that secure the rule of law and justice in North Caucasian and Southern Federal Districts, about special features of these places, about the specific nature of their work and the challenges that the investigators of the Investigative Committee of Russia have to face and overcome day by day.
