
The Investigative Committee notes: vaccination is the simplest way to fight coronavirus

"Red zone" ... For a year and a half, this phrase has been causing only one association in many people - death ... To die not from an enemy bullet, not from the hands of a criminal or during a natural disaster and not to die of old age surrounded by loved ones, but simply "burn out" in several days of lying in a hospital bed, with a tube from the ventilator in the mouth. So suddenly, so prosaic, and at the same time so really and so scary. Experts continue to repeat in one voice - only MASS vaccination will help to handle the terrible infection. And coercive measures will not help here. It is important that people themselves understand how dangerous the situation is, and most importantly, how easily it can be solved.
