
The Chairman of the Investigative Committee of Russia instructs the direction of the St. Petersburg Main Investigations Directorate to report on cases of mass fights involving migrants

At least 25 people clashed near a house on Krasnoselskoye Shosse in St Petersburg on 22 August, media reported. In addition, migrants were detained in St Petersburg's Nevsky district last month after a mass brawl outside a hotel on Bolshevik Avenue.

The Chairman of the Investigative Committee of Russia instructed A.D. Golombievsky, the Acting Head of the St. Petersburg Main Investigative Department of the Investigative Committee of the Russian Federation, to report on the cases.
