colleague in the arbitration court was considering an arbitration case. In September 2020 both women were in one of the Moscow restaurants, where Kondrat told her colleague that she had been approached by persons ready to give her money in the amount of 50 thousand US dollars in case of a decision not to bring to subsidiary liability some individuals and legal entities involved in the case. Subsequently, during telephone conversations and personal meetings Kondrat persuaded her colleague in the arbitration court to make the above decision in the arbitration case for a fee, and she herself decided to act as an intermediary in the transfer of funds. However, the colleague contacted law enforcement authorities and the transaction was therefore supervised by the operational services.

At present a complex of investigative actions is carried out, aimed at establishing all the circumstances of the offense. The investigation is ongoing.
