
The Investigative Committee of Russia continues to investigate the circumstances of the accident occurred on Crimean Bridge

The Investigative Committee of Russia, within the investigation of the criminal case, continues to detect the circumstances of the accident occurred on Crimean Bridge, where a truck was blown up this morning moving on the automobile part from the side of the Taman Peninsula, which led to the ignition of seven fuel tanks of the train, following in the direction of the Crimean Peninsula.

On the instruction of Mr. A.I. Bastrykin, Chairman of the Investigative Committee of Russia, investigators of the Main Investigation Directorate, Forensic Specialists of the Main Forensic Directorate (Forensic Center) and Officers of the Forensic Expert Center of the Investigative Committee of Russia promptly left for the place of emergency.

According to preliminary data, three people died as a result of the accident. They were, presumably, the passengers of the car, which was located next to the exploded truck. At present, the bodies of two victims have already been raised from the water - a male and a female, their identities are being identified. Within the investigation, the investigators of the Russian Investigative Committee also detected the identification number of the truck and its owner. This is a resident of Krasnodar Krai, investigative actions have been launched at his place of residence. The route of movement of the truck and the corresponding files are being studied.

The criminal investigation continues.
