
On the course of a criminal investigation into the President of Poland plane crash

The General Investigative Office of the Investigative Committee continues investigating the criminal case of the Polish President plane crash near Smolensk.

As part of a request for international legal assistance in investigation, the investigators of the Investigative Committee have requested and are waiting in the near future to receive from the Polish side information about incoming and outgoing phone connections of all the people aboard Tu-154M at the time of the crash,.

Also the Russian investigators expect to receive from the Polish side transcript of one of the airborne recorders, which had been earlier transferred to Polish experts.

In addition, within the international legal assistance the investigators have requested a number of other documents and investigation on the territory of the Republic of Poland.

19 May 2010

Page address: <https://en.sledcom.ru/news/item/509324>