
Chairman of Russia's Investigative Committee visited supported children's home in Murom

Today Alexander Bastykin has visited Murom children's home supported by the Central Office of the Russia's Investigative Committee.

The Chairman had a friendly talk with the children, said words of support and gratitude to the administration and all the staff of the children's home for their hard, but so needed work and their daily care about the children.

The personnel of the Russia's Investigative Committee have been patronizing the children's home in Murom for several years. They give the presents and organize repairs in the children's home for their own money. It should be noted that almost all regional investigations directorates have decided to patronize and support children's homes. This support does not come to one-time presents for holidays. The personnel of investigating bodies when necessary take measures to organize highly qualified medical aid to the seriously ill children and take part in their education and adaptation after they leave the children's homes.
