
On eve of International Children's Day officials of Khabarovsk Territory Investigations Directorate visited inmates of sponsored infant home

Today the officials of the Khabarovsk Investigations Directorate of the Russia's Investigative Committee together with its head Kilill Levit have visited a specialized infant home. The investigators and the facility have been friends for many years. The investigators took the children under their patronage in 2009: with their own money they regularly buy them toys, sports gear, household appliances and many other things. In addition they organize interesting trips to the zoo, fun fare and game camps all the time.

At present the special infant home in Khabarovsk is holding 180 children aged between 1 month and 4 years.

Today the investigators were special guests at the celebration of the International Children's Day. Traditionally they gave the children presents and director of the infant home Tatyana Nikolayevskaya organized a tour around the facility.
