In Trans-Baikal Territory criminal investigation launched in attack of stray dogs on child

Trans-Baikal investigating bodies of the Russia's Investigative Committee have launched a criminal investigation in negligence of officials of administration of Ingodinsky district of the town of Chita following an attack of stray dogs on a 10-year-old boy (part 1 of article 293 of the RF Penal Code).

According to investigators, the officials of Ingodinsky district administration failed to perform their duty to protect residents of the district against stray animals, which led to the incident when on 23 January 2015 several stray dogs attacked a 10-year-old boy. As a result the boy was taken to hospital with multiple avulsed wounds in his head and torso.

A forensic medical examination has been fixed to determine the gravity of the boy's wounds. Other investigative operations are underway to find out all the circumstances of the incident. Soon the investigators are going to invite the officials of the district administration in for a questioning and request for necessary documents. The investigation is ongoing.
